MEDICAL.

TO THE UNFORTUNATE.

NEW REMEDIES! NEW REMEDIES!

Dr. Gibbon's Dispensary,

623 KEARNEY STREET, NEAR COMMERCIAL, San Francisco. Established in 1854, for the treatment of Sexual and Seminal Diseases, such as Gonorrhœa, Gleet, Stricture, Syphilis in all its forms, Seminal Weakness, Impotency, etc. Skin Diseases (of years standing) and Ulcerated Legs successfully treated.

DR. GIBBON has the pleasure of announcing that he has returned from visiting the principal Hospitals of Europe, and has resumed practice at his Dispensary, 623 Kearney street, corner of Commercial, San Francisco, where his old patients and those requiring his services may find him.

The Doctor has spared neither time nor money in seeking out new remedies, and has returned with increased facilities for the alleviation of human suffering.

Horrible Diseases.

How many thousands of persons, both male and female, are there who are suffering out a miserable existence from the effects of secret indulgences, or from virus absorbed into the system! Look at their pallid, emaciated and disfigured faces and their broken-down constitutions, disqualifying them for the happiness of marriage or the enjoyment of life. In this horrid situation thousands suffer until death closes the scene. Let parents, guardians, friends, attend to those who are suffering with any of these horrible, life-destroying maladies—see that they are cared for and cured before it be too late. Send them immediately to DR. GIBBON, a physician who has made private diseases his especial study for years, and who is certain to cure the most inveterate case, without mercury or any injurious drugs. It is important to those who are afflicted, or to those who are interested in the welfare of their friends, to be careful of the many pretended doctors who infest all cities, publishing their skill in curing all diseases in a few days, imposing upon the public by using the names of eminent physicians from Europe and other places. Be therefore careful and make strict inquiry, or you may fall into the hands of these sharpers.

Seminal Weakness.

Seminal Emissions, the consequence of self-abuse. This solitary vice, or depraved sexual indulgence, is practiced by the youth of both sexes to an almost unlimited extent, producing with unerring certainty the following train of morbid symptoms, unless combated by scientific medical measures, viz.: Sallow countenance, dark spots under the eyes, pain in the head, ringing in the ears, noise like the rustling of leaves and rattling of chariots, uneasiness about the loins, weakness of the limbs, confused vision, blunted intellect, loss of confidence, diffidence in approaching strangers, a dislike to form new acquaintances, disposition to shun society, loss of memory, hectic flushes, pimples and various eruptions about the face, furred tongue, fetid breath, coughs, consumption, night sweats, monomania and frequent insanity. If relief be not obtained, should apply immediately, either in person or by letter, and have a cure effected by his new and scientific mode of treating this disease, which never fails of effecting a quick and radical cure. Dr. G. will give One Hundred Dollars to any person who will prove satisfactorily to him that he was cured of this complaint by either of the San Francisco quacks.

Married Men,

Or those who contemplate marriage, who are suffering under any of these fearful maladies, should not forget the sacred responsibility resting upon them, nor delay to obtain immediate relief.

DR. GIBBON is responsible, and will give to each patient a written instrument, binding himself to effect a radical and permanent cure or make no charge.

Cured at Home.

Persons at a distance may be CURED AT HOME by addressing a letter to Dr. Gibbon stating case, symptoms, length of time the disease has continued, and have medicines promptly forwarded, free from damage and curiosity, to any part of the country, with full and plain directions. By inclosing Ten Dollars coin in registered letter through the Post-office or through Wells, Fargo & Co., a package of medicine will be forwarded to any part of the Union. All communications strictly confidential.

Caution to the Unfortunate.

Beware of the San Francisco quacks and pretenders who with bogus sworn certificates dupe the unwary. Some of the self-styled doctors whose names are to be found in the daily and weekly newspapers of San Francisco and other places are tradesmen, and became too lazy to work at their trade. Some are gunsmiths, shoemakers, newspaper carriers, intelligence office keepers, etc. The only way to avoid imposition is to make inquiry. It will cost you nothing, and may save you many regrets; for as advertising physicians in eight cases out of ten are bogus, there is no safety in trusting any of them until you know who and what they are. Dr. Gibbon does not deceive people by exhibiting bogus titles, certificates, pretended patients' letters, etc. Dr. Gibbon will satisfy persons who may call at his office of his ability to treat diseases that he proposes to cure.

Address DR. J. F. GIBBON, 623 Kearney street, corner Commercial, San Francisco. Postoffice Box 1957. REMEMBER TO PUT BOX 1957 ON THE LETTER. Consultations FREE.

Correspondents will please inform DR. GIBBON that they read his advertisement in the DAILY OREGONIAN. 1y6d&w

EASTERN NEWS.

BY TELEGRAPH TO THE OREGONIAN.]

Correspondence between Mr. Beecher and Francis D. Moulton, Esq.—Mr. Beecher's Letters.

NEW YORK, August 6.—The following are the letters written by Mr. Beecher to Mr. Moulton:

BROOKLYN, July 28, 1874.

F. D. Moulton: The Committee of investigation are waiting mainly for you before closing their labors. I most earnestly wish you would promptly and clearly [illegible] your [illegible] memory of everything that can bear on my case. I pray you also to bring all letters and papers relating to it which will throw any light on it, and bring to a result this protracted [illegible] that Mrs. Moulton has been recovering, and [illegible] that her need of your care will not [illegible] to detain you.

Yours truly, H. W. BEECHER.

To F. D. Moulton, Esq.

BROOKLYN, August 4, 1874.

F. D. Moulton, Esq.—My Dear Sir: Your letter of this morning [illegible] is received. Allow me to express my regret and astonishment that you refuse me [illegible] to certain letters and papers in your possession [illegible] and the charges made against me by Theodore Tilton, and at the reasons given for your refusal. On your solemn and repeated assurances of personal friendship, and in unquestioning confidence with which you inspired me as to your honor and fidelity, I placed in your hands for safe keeping various letters addressed to me from a brother, sister and various other parties, also a memoranda of affairs not immediately connected with Mr. Tilton's matters. I also from time to time addressed to you confidential notes relating to myself, as one friend would write to another. These papers were never placed in your hands to be held for two parties, nor to be used in any way. They were to be held for me. I did not wish them to be subject to risk of loss or scattered from my careless habits in matters of [illegible] documents. They were to be held for me [illegible] the papers were concerned, you were only [illegible] trustee holding papers subject to my wishes. Mr. Tilton has made a deadly assault upon me, and has used letters and fragments of letters purporting to be copies of these papers. Are these extracts genuine? Are they garbled? What are the dates? What, if anything, has been left out, and what put in? You refuse my demand for these papers on various pleas: that if I speak truth in my statement I do not need them; that if I make successful use of them it will be injurious to Tilton, and that you, as a friend of both parties, are bound not to [illegible] any aim that shall injure the other. I do not desire to injure any one, but to repel injury attempted upon me by the use of papers committed secretly to your care. These documents have been seen and copied and have been hawked [illegible] in New York newspaper offices. What purported to be my confidential notes to you are on the market, but when I demand sight of papers of which you are the only trustee, that I may defend myself, you refuse, because you are a friend of both parties. Mr. Tilton has access to your depository for materials with which to strike, but I am not permitted to use them in defending myself. I don't ask you to place before the committee any papers which Mr. Tilton may have given you, but I do demand that you forthwith place before the committee every paper which I have written or deposited with you.

Yours truly, H. W. BEECHER.

Mr. Moulton's Significant Reply.

NEW YORK, August 6.—Moulton's second letter to Beecher reads: My dear Sir: In our acquaintance and friendship I have never received from you a letter of the tone of yours of August 4th. It seems unlike yourself and to have been inspired by the same ill advisers who so lamentably carried your private affairs before a committee of your church and thence before the public. In reply let me remind you that during the whole of the past four years all the documents, notes and memoranda which you and Mr. Tilton have entrusted to me have been entrusted because they had a reference to your mutual differences. I hold no papers either of yours or his except such as bear on this case. You speak of memoranda of affairs not immediately connected with the Tilton matter. You probably allude here to memoranda of your difficulties with Mr. Bowen, but these have a direct reference to your present case with Mr. Tilton, and were deposited with me by you because of such reference.

You speak also of a letter or two from your brother and sister, and I am sure you have not forgotten the apprehension which we entertained lest Mrs. Hooker should fulfill the design which she then avowed—to invade your pulpit and read to your congregation a confession of your intimacy with Mrs. Tilton.

You speak of other papers which I hold subject to your wishes. I hold none such, nor do I hold any subject to Mr. Tilton's wishes. The papers which I hold, both yours and his, were not given to me subject to the wishes of either party, but the very object of my holding them has been, and still is, to prevent the wish of one party being injuriously exercised against the other.

You are incorrect in saying that Mr. Tilton has had access to my depository for materials. On the contrary, I have refused Tilton such access. During the preparation of his sworn statement he came to me and said his case would be incomplete unless I permitted him to use all the documents, but I refused, and all he could rely upon were such notes as he had made from time to time from writings of yours which you had written to me to be read to him, and passages which he caught from my lips in short hand. Mr. Tilton has seen only a part of the papers in my possession, and would be more surprised to learn the entire facts of the case than you can possibly be. What idle rumors may have existed in newspaper offices I know not, but they have not come from me. In closing your letter you say, "I do not ask you to place before the Committee any papers which Mr. Tilton may have given you, but I do demand that you place before the Committee every paper which I have written or deposited with you." In reply I can only say I cannot justly place before the Committee papers of one of the parties without doing the same with the papers of the other, and I cannot do this honorably except either by legal process compelling me, or only by consent in writing, not only of yourself, but of Mr. Tilton, with whom I shall consult on the subject as speedily as possible. You will [illegible] a greater sense of justice in this reply than you have infused into your unfortunate letter of August 4th.

Very respectfully, FRANCIS D. MOULTON.

It is believed that in the criminal case which Tilton is to bring General Butler will act as counsel.

NEW YORK, August 6.—Frank Moulton was before the Beecher Investigating Committee last night. It was stated that he would appear on Saturday night with documents.

Further Concerning Mr. Beecher's Correspondence with Mr. Moulton.

Beecher, in his note written to Moulton July 28, asking for his original letters, agreed to return them all when used. Moulton said he would only do so at the request of both parties, unless compelled in a court of justice. He says: "I am bound to believe and assume that in the statement you are preparing you will only set forth the facts, and if so, the documents when produced will confirm and can not contradict them, so you will suffer no loss. If on the contrary, which I cannot presume, you desire possession of the documents that you may prove your statements in a manner not to be contradicted by facts set forth in them, to the disadvantage of Tilton, I should then be aiding you in doing what I cannot believe the strictest and truest friendship for you calls upon me to do.

With grateful recollections of your kind confidence and trust in me, I remain yours truly,

F. D. MOULTON.

Dr. Storrs Interviewed.

NEW YORK, August 6.—The Tribune publishes an interview with Dr. Storrs relative to the Beecher-Tilton matter. Dr. Storrs says Tilton came to him about a week after the publication of the Woodhull paper. He thought some statement necessary and wanted advice. He (Storrs) read the article, and Tilton's second call suggested four points to be denied: first, criminal relations of Beecher and Mrs. Tilton; second, Tilton's discovery of them; third, that Beecher received a paper from Mrs. Tilton declaring that such relations existed; fourth, that Mr. Moulton obtained that paper from Beecher. Tilton said, suppose these points cannot be denied? Storrs replied: The alternative is statement of the truth or absolute silence. An evasion in any [illegible] statement would keep the scandal alive.

Dr. Storrs declined to give further advice. Tilton came again with F. B. Carpenter, and showed him a letter in the handwriting of Mrs. Tilton (as he believed): "On a certain day in the summer [illegible] my husband that Mr. Beecher had asked me to become a wife to him, etc." Mr. Tilton also laid before me and read many other documents bearing on the case, but with the exception of the [illegible] none of the original letters were shown me. Tilton did not seem actuated by a feeling of revenge; he merely wanted my advice. He spoke [illegible] of Beecher; used no violent language, and seemed sad—depressed, perhaps. His appearance was deceptive, but [illegible] referred to his [illegible] Mrs. Tilton told him Dr. Storrs a year after [illegible] the letter was written by her and that it was [illegible]

Dr. Storrs spoke feelingly of the long friendship between himself and Beecher, and expressed the hope that Beecher would be shown blameless.

The Potter Law before the Supreme Court of Wisconsin.

MILWAUKEE, August 6.—In the Supreme Court at Madison yesterday in the railroad case the Court decided that it would hear the application for a preliminary injunction upon the information of the Attorney General, and that objections raised by counsel for the railroads would be [illegible] considered in determining whether the application should be granted. Counsel for the railroads then read affidavits setting forth the depreciation of [illegible] and preferred stock of companies since the passage of the Potter law. After some objection counsel for the State read counter affidavits from Commissioner Osborne and State Secretary Bird, stating that the companies were demanding and receiving illegal rates. Judge Orton then opened the argument on behalf of the State, confining himself to the question of jurisdiction.

The Executive Committee of the State Grangers has issued an address to the Grangers of Wisconsin. It warns them that an attempt will be made in the next Legislature to secure the repeal of the railroad law, and urges them to resist it.

Rates of Fare for Immigrants raised 10 per Cent. and more

NEW YORK, August 6.—The railroad war concerning rates of passage for immigrants, which opened in March last, has just been brought to a close. The combatants were the New York Central and Hudson River, the Erie and Pennsylvania railroads. Recently the railroad agents took measures tending toward a reconciliation, and after considerable discussion it was resolved to restore the old rates, which have not been in operation since March 8. This increases immigrant fare to the west more than ten per cent. and to some points more than fifteen per cent.

JACKSON, August 6.—This morning while descending into the cellar of his store Charles Stickler fell, striking his head on the ground. He fainted and his wife went for a doctor. When they returned he had disappeared. They searched in every direction but without success till about dark, when he came out of the woods at Mormon house, two miles from here. The fall seems to have crazed him, as he knows nothing and recognizes none of his friends. He is an old resident and has been engaged in the mercantile business here since 1850.

GENERAL SHERMAN ON THE INDIAN QUESTION.—New York, July 31.—Washington specials say General Sherman continues to be very positive in the expression of his opinion regarding the Indian policy. He does not regard the Indian troubles as of a very serious character, and expresses the belief that they will soon die out, as such troubles have done hitherto. He says, however, that so long as the Indian race remains upon the earth there will be trouble between them and the whites, and that whether the Indians are governed by the bayonet or the Bible there will never be perfect peace between the two races. Nothing but extermination will settle the question. He says the army is small and widely scattered, but in case of any determined warlike action by the different tribes of Indians, the army, depleted as it is, would be able to protect settlers and their property. He believes the Indian peace policy influences the Indians to a large degree, but that none in reality believe [illegible]. He regards the government as being forced into the attitude of a suppliant begging for peace. [illegible]

A NEW ORLEANS THIEF.—New Orleans has a swindler and forger [illegible] exceeding [illegible] that since [illegible] was big, bold and creditable [illegible] was the accredited agent in this city of the large [illegible] cotton house of [illegible] Fress, Friedl & Co. Recently he purchased on their account 3,000 bales of cotton, which he shipped to Liverpool [illegible] but invoicing the cotton [illegible] higher [illegible] and drawing bills of exchange in full for the shipment. The article was of the [illegible] being on the contrary [illegible] making a difference between the real and invoiced value of something like $180,000. Realizing on his drafts, Meyer was immediately lost in space, the hundred and odd thousand being left with him.

THE GRAND DUKE'S DIAMOND GIRL.

An American Beauty at a Ball in Russia.

THE GIRL WIDOW IN A MASK—A GRAND DUKE PICKS [illegible]—A RUDE AWAKENING—GROWTH AND EXILE—THE [illegible] MAY BECOME A MUSCOVITE REFORMER.

(Corr. New York Herald.)

PARIS, July 6, 1874.

One night in the winter of 1871 there was a masked ball at the Opera House of St. Petersburg, and seldom before even in the brilliant capital of the Northern Czars had festival lights shone over so much beauty and renown. It was carnival time, when pleasure is half privileged to take wider license than usual, in order to prepare for the terrible rigors of the orthodox Russian Lent, during which folks must dine and sup upon lentils and salted cucumber. All the gilded youth of Russia was there, and all those older men who can wear their years without becoming morose and crabbed. Under the pretty dominoes of graceful [illegible] which were fluttering about like the fireflies of a Southern summer night were many of the great court ladies, with, perhaps, here and there a princess of the Imperial House of Romanoff; for between the present state of manners and society in Russia and that which existed in England during the reign of Charles II, there are several points of resemblance. The conversation of the rich and high born is astonishingly free, and they openly profess latitudinarian principles on the subject of marriage, divorce and kindred topics. Some of the women present, enjoying good positions and desirable reputation, had more than one husband living on amicable terms in the same street, and a lady with a turn for practical joking has been known to join a whist party, sitting calmly down with no less than three gentlemen with whom she had been united in the bonds of wedlock.

AN AMERICAN WIDOW—YOUNG AND BEAUTIFUL.

Among the company present on this occasion was an American girl of extraordinary beauty. She had not acquired so much experience in matrimony or chosen such a variety of partners in life as numberless respectable people at St. Petersburg, Moscow and Odessa, but although she was scarcely out of her teens she was a widow, and the ribald said she was a courtesan. That is to say, it was alleged that she belonged to a profession which is every day growing larger, and which has numbered women as gifted and lovely as Lady Hamilton, whom Lord Nelson with his dying breath bequeathed to his country's gratitude; as Mrs. Jordan, who was a faithful wife in all but name to William IV of England; as Adrienne Lecouvreur, who gave glory to Marshal Saxe at the price of her life, and as Rachel, who refused a crown. This courtesan, if courtesan she were, looked as fresh as a new blown flower and was full to overflowing of youth and high spirits. So exquisitely perfect a piece of womanhood is seldom seen. She had dark hair in great profusion and an [illegible] sort of forehead, broad, open, and white as ivory. Her dark eyes flashed under her long lashes like black diamonds, and were all aglow with wit and kindliness. The nose was of that firm yet delicate aquiline which denotes courage and resolution; the mouth was wondrously full and soft, the upper lip small and formed like a bow; her teeth were as living pearls, and her complexion dazzling fair. Little feet, small hands and taper fingers, a figure which a fairy might envy, sprightly words and laughter which fell on the ear like music complete an honest description of this American beauty on the night she went to the masked ball at St. Petersburg.

FEMALE PRIVILEGES WHEN UNDER A MASK.

Now the great fun of these assemblies is that ladies are allowed by custom to make all sorts of advances to gentlemen, for they are masked and concealed by their dominoes, while men go in simple evening dress. The orthodox thing for a lady to do, therefore, is to fix upon some gentleman whom she wishes to tease or to mystify, and to tell him some incident of his life which he fancies a profound secret, then to leave him puzzled and bewildered. The American widow was looking out for somebody whom she knew in order to torment him in this way, when she saw a group of her friends talking with a stranger, and after listening to some fragments of their conversation, as women will, she suddenly pounced upon the stranger and led him away. What she said to him is only known to themselves, but when he quitted her that night he was spellbound and fascinated.

ROMANTIC ACQUAINTANCE WITH A PRINCE.

Well he might be. There is no wit in this lower world equal to American wit, so humorous, so racy and original. When this Russian heard it for the first time from lips so sweet, no wonder that he was enchanted. She spoke freely to him and without reserve, thinking that he was merely some young count or petty prince, and as she spoke she seemed drawn toward him by a subtle sympathy in their characters. She was quite abashed when she found out that she had been gossiping unceremoniously with the Grand Duke Nicholas Constantinowitch, nephew of the Emperor of all the Russias.

They never parted afterward for two years and a half.

THE CZAR'S NEPHEW IN TRAINING.

The young Grand Duke had good abilities and good nature, but his education had been woefully neglected. The American woman taught him, formed him into a gentleman and raised him up to her own intellectual standard, which was high. She was the daughter of Dr. Ely, a Protestant clergyman of Connecticut, a man of some distinction in science and letters. He was unfortunately for his belongings also a great traveller, and if she who was now the companion of a Russian Grand Duke had gone wrong in early life it was because she had been left too much to a [illegible] bigoted and narrow minded mother, who had taught the doctrines of passive obedience with a thick stick. Her daughter, however, had been well schooled, and had learned Latin, French and music, so that she was an excellent instructress to a young man who knew nothing.

LOVE AND A LEGAL CONTRACT.

The Grand Duke loved her so intensely that he made her sign a formal contract in which she bound herself by a solemn oath never to leave him, or to speak one word, save in friendship, to any other mortal man. When he went

AWAY TO THE KHIVAN WAR

The road behind him was strewn with Cossack spearmen bearing in hot haste his messages to his beloved, and the telegraph wires between them were never still. He was a brave soldier, and he told how he had fought and conquered, how he had ridden through wild and morass, over moor and mountain, how his sword had gleamed in many a dangerous fight, till the clash of his victorious cymbals had been heard in the very fastnesses of the Khivan robbers, and then, with the first glad shout of triumph in his ears, he had taken off his harness and was hastening back to her.

WOMAN WORSHIP.

Upon her part, her vanity had first been flattered, her woman's heart had been won by a handsome young man of congenial tastes and temper, but gradually [illegible] taken possession of her whole soul. The love which she bore him, kindled by his knightly deeds in [illegible] lands, his valor in danger and his fame, had passed into worship, and became idolatry.

He had been first her lover, then her hero, then her god. She watched over his honor as only devoted women can do, and she kept his new glories bright.

MISFORTUNE, SORROW AND ARREST.

He was the only one of the Russian princes who never seemed to get into scrapes or incur unpopularity. But it may have been that he received some ugly blow in that Khivan expedition, or that he contracted some illness, for when he came to her house, which he called his home, she now and then observed that he was under the influence of uncontrollable excitement. At eleven o'clock one night he was arrested on her door-step, and she has never seen him since.

THE CHARGE.

The ostensible charge against him was alleged to be that he had stolen the jewels of a shrine belonging to an image of the Virgin Mary which was in his mother's bedroom, and which had been given to her by her father in accordance with Russian custom on the day he was baptized. The truth appears, however, to be that these jewels were taken by his aide-de-camp, and that he generously bore the blame to save the young officer from disgrace. It was not likely that the Grand Duke would have committed the robbery himself, for he had no need to do so. He has a large fortune, and as the eldest son and heir to his father, will be some day entitled to a property of such immense value that any usurer in the world would have taken his bond for whatever sum he might have required. Moreover, the Grand Duke is not a spendthrift, but he lived very moderately, and allowed only $800 a month for his domestic expenses. Besides, he had received $30,000 from his bankers on the same day that the robbery was said to have been committed, and the stolen jewels were valued at about $1,200. The Grand Duke nevertheless took the robbery on himself, and after having been kept some time under arrest he has been banished to the Caucasus.

THE AMERICAN BEAUTY SENT AWAY.

Meanwhile the American lady's house was searched, and when nothing was found which could in any way connect her with the theft she was sent out of the country, accompanied by two good natured policemen, who seemed to be somewhat ashamed of the dirty work they were doing. None of her property was taken from her or injured. Her expulsion from Russia, however, is an exercise of arbitrary power which makes one glad enough that it does not flourish everywhere.

REASONS WHY.

The probable reason why the Grand Duke Nicholas has been banished to the Caucasus and why the American lady has been expelled from Russia is that there was good ground for believing they were about to be married. What then? Rank and wealth can win no fairer prize than beauty. She was very charming, and had a good deal of the downright American common sense which a Russian Prince in sight of possible revolutions might have found of considerable value. It is that harmless sort of smartness which consists in saying nothings pleasantly. She would have made him one of the most popular princes in Europe had he married her and he had up a few bygones, as such things are usually hushed up in despotic countries. She was a conciliatory, agreeable woman, who would have guided him to high destinies, and herself have been capable of any sacrifices. She would have done wonders of heroism in time of public trouble. She would have adopted her new country gladly, proudly, and may be have brought forth a race of warrior statesmen, brave, strong and wise.

THE MORAL.

It is not a just sentence to pronounce that a young woman's antecedents shall stand forever in her way. If rakes are supposed to reform and to become shining lights and elders, why should not the same presumption prevail with regard to a woman who has once erred? We do not know with any certainty what has really happened to her, or how desperately, though perhaps vainly, she has struggled against evil. Her fault may have arisen from anything rather than from vice, and often the very excellence of virtue is the heart's guide into ill. Some of the best and highest qualities in human nature may have led her the first step downwards. Even when we suppose the worst of her, large allowance must be made, not only for temptation, but for the cowardly and base advantage which may be always taken of youth and innocence. A fallen woman is a wretched thing. Perhaps so. Let him who is guiltless cast the first stone at her. Other women will strike at her whether they are guiltless or not. But men and gentlemen may remember with respectful compassion for the weakness which has been overcome, that the lures to which a friendless woman succumbs are often irresistible. All that experience, cunning and treachery can do to ruin her is sure to be done. Wise men, even, are not ashamed to try all they know against a child merely because she is a girl.

THE LOT OF VICE AND THE FORCE OF TEMPTATION.

Let us for once look at this question fairly. A girl who has strayed from the path of virtue is in much the same position as a man who has committed a theft; both of them are dishonored. But suppose a clever rogue were to persuade a boy to steal, our indignation would be aroused not against the boy, but against the rogue. We should merely scold and forgive the boy, but in any primitive state of society the rogue would be lynched. We may go even further than this, and imagine a nobleman of illustrious rank, great fortune and high in the respect of his countrymen using all his influence and eloquence to induce a lad of seven to commit a robbery. We may fancy that he promised the lad favor, affection, pleasure, secrecy and wealth if he complied; swore eternal friendship to him, coaxed, cajoled, watched and haunted him for years till he sinned. Whom should we blame—the tempted or the tempter? If this is a true parallel, as assuredly it is, let us keep our virtuous wrath for the seducers of women rather than for those whom they betray. If we adopt the common opinion of the world and admit that a woman should be crucified because she has been deceived, yet her deceiver has no right to execute judgment against her. There is a sort of righteousness in unrighteousness, and to examine the case merely according to the code of commercial honesty, a man who has degraded a woman is clearly bound to keep faith with her, otherwise he will unquestionably be obtaining goods upon false pretenses, and he has no more right to take the bloom off a woman's life from her without equitable requital than he has to run off with a shopkeeper's stock in trade, or purchase his wares on a promissory note and then refuse to honor it.

PRINCES MUST BE GENTLEMEN.

A Grand Duke must not play false with a woman because she is of doubtful character any more than he might cheat a blackleg. He may refuse to have anything to do with such persons, but if he chooses to hold intercourse with them his dealings should be conducted upon the same principles which regulate the conduct of a high minded gentleman in all the relations of life, and he must treat them in the same upright manner in which he behaves to other people. It is an amazing argument in the mouth of a prince and a soldier to say that he keeps worthless company in order to behave without integrity toward his companions, and if he wishes to act honorably—as no doubt the Grand Duke Nicholas did—it is a disgrace to a great nation that he should have been prevented from doing so. It would not have harmed him had he been allowed to keep his troth.

THE DUKE OF CAMBRIDGE

In England has done so under precisely similar circumstances, and so did the Archduke John of Austria. It did not deprive them of their place in the esteem of their fellow countrymen, but rather raised them to greater heights. The Duke of Cambridge is Commander in Chief of the British army, and when all the House of Hapsburg Lorraine were hurled down from power the Archduke John was elected by universal suffrage as Administrator of the Austrian Empire, not because he was an Imperial Prince, but because he had married an inn keeper's daughter and dealt honorably with her.

AMERICAN CHIVALRY.

It is said that some Americans are mixed up with this Russian story. If so, we need not blush for them. It is no shame to admire a beautiful woman in distress and to show something of chivalry—something of goodness in her defense. I should not be so proud as I am of my connection with the Americans if I saw them all turn their backs on a lady because a political policeman had been instructed to tease her. The whole affair seems rather to have amused the Americans who were concerned in it, and they poked fun at the police.

All is well that ends well, and let no one be surprised if the future Grand Duchess Nicholas of Russia hails from Connecticut.

THE RICH-POOR OF PARIS.

OUTWARD SPLENDOR AND CONCEALED SQUALOR—THEATRICAL TRICKS TO INCREASE THE SIZE OF APARTMENTS—SEVEN PERSONS LIVING IN TWO ROOMS—BATHING IN A BOWL—DUMMY FOLDING DOORS—TOILETS OF THE RICH-POOR MADAME.

It is certain that if poverty is to be measured by the length of one's purse there are untold numbers of the very poor in Paris. If, on the contrary, the estate of a man is to be judged by the style in which he lives, the very poor in this vast city are fewer than many suppose. A very rich man must have his hotel. Rothschild, for instance, lives like a king, and a man who in New York would be considered a merchant prince lives on a grand scale in apartments, or what is known in America as a flat—these often having from thirty to forty rooms, and running down from this to two or three. There is no such thing as measuring the dimensions of a Frenchman's house. He may live at the top of a magnificent white marble palace in six rooms, at a rent of $100 or $200. And yet when you have climbed up there, have sounded the bell, and have been admitted into the hall, which with its highly polished mirror will deceive you at once in regard to the size of the little box, you are convinced that he revels in luxury. Opposite the hall glass opens the folding doors into the parlor, which is a long room, with still more mirrors to

AID IN INCREASING THE PERSPECTIVE.

It is the duty of the servant to throw these doors open before answering the bell, so as to give a stranger the impression that the room is constantly occupied, while, in fact, nobody is allowed there except to receive visitors. Off of this room are yet other folding doors, two of them leading into the dining room, which is always fitted up in exquisite taste, and with studied carelessness left visible to the caller. Try the doors at the other side of the room; it is hard to open them. Probably locked? Most effectually locked! They never move upon their hinges. Still they are not quite as useless as "a painted ship upon a painted ocean," for they serve a double purpose: they dispense with the necessity of pictures to fill up the bare walls—for who would hang pictures on doors?—and they give one the impression that vast apartments stretch beyond.

Madame will receive you in the most charmingly languid manner if your call chance to occur in the day time. She has just arisen; won't you have coffee with her? This, if she means by generous courtesy to make a useful friend of you. Now you find your way into what she calls her private apartment, which, like the other rooms, opens into the parlor. It is really quite a gem in its way. You wish you were French, or, at least, that you might understand the art of living as French people do. But a little closer acquaintance and a moderate increase in your experience will teach you that these people work and strive only for the sake of the appearance they make. They comprehend what the elegancies of life consist of, and they will live without the commonest necessities in order to

DECEIVE YOU AS TO THEIR REAL CONDITION.

A family of seven persons will actually live in two small rooms and make their beds up late at night on the floor of the apartment in which but a few moments before they were chatting with you upon the impossibility of economizing in Paris since the war. Even they, in their modest style of living, find that it takes a fortune now to spend a year in Paris. You are shocked to hear them suggest that theirs is a simple mode of life; you never thought of being so fine at home. In reality these people that I speak of live like paupers. They sleep on the floor the year round, and often on the kitchen floor at that. This last is convenient, as they can get up and put the coffee over the spirit lamp and retire again until it is prepared. Coffee is taken in bed, of course.

For the benefit of the girls at home, who may admire and envy this lady of luxury that graciously asks you into her boudoir at 11 o'clock, declaring she has just arisen, and invites you to take coffee with her, I will tell them something of her toilets and the simple way in which they change with the hours of the day.

Madame goes to market as early as possible. Nobody is out in the early morning—that is to say, nobody before whom she cares to keep up an appearance—and as the market-people always measure a customer before setting a price, it is wise to go to market shabbily dressed, not only because no one will see her, but as a matter of economy. So the toilet of the day is not made until this duty has been performed. In exchange for the great airy bathroom, with its abundance of hot and cold water and its fresh clean towels, which Americans cannot live without, Madame has, in a little dark hole between the kitchen and her bedroom,

A PINT OF WATER

In a basin the size of a finger bowl. For water is too precious a commodity to be used unless sparingly. It has to be carried from the street up five flights of stairs, and a servant must be paid five cents an hour to do it. No further arguments than these are necessary with Madame. With the aid of a dirty little towel, for clothes must be washed away from home—there is neither room nor water to do it in these papier mache boxes—our lady will succeed in making herself very tidy. I have really begun to wonder if there is not such a thing as a dry wash. At 10 the coiffeur comes, and Madame's hair is dressed as, my dear, you never think of having yours dressed except it be for a ball. If she chance to be a little gray, the hair is powdered after it has been arranged in its intricate puffs, braids and frizzes. A coiffeur costs but a few sous, and this dressing of the hair is, I believe, the stronghold of Frenchwomen. I know that it made a profound impression upon me. I shall never forget the feeling of flattered vanity and unutterable gratitude I experienced when such a fine lady invited us to make her house our home. If we could put up with their simplicity and make ourselves comfortable in her room she would gladly move into another apartment. All this was to be granted because of the very favorable impression we had made upon her. It would be so disagreeable for us to move into an ordinary boarding-house; this should be like a home to us.

FATAL DELUSION.

Home, indeed! I have my doubts if there be many such things in Paris, except where some Americans have made their nest for a few years. This matter of home, I am coming to think, is purely American. The English cannot make one; they find such repose only in a house which their ancestors occupied. An American will make a little room home in a single day.—Paris Cor. Chicago Tribune.

IMMORALITY, TAR AND FEATHERS AND A HOMICIDE.—Boston, August 2.—A special dispatch from Oak Bluffs to the Advertiser says that for weeks there has been a good deal of scandal in connection with a Mr. Vinson, of Edgartown, and S. K. Elliott, of Worcester, who have occupied a cottage in company with two married women belonging to Edgartown. These men have been threatened with tar and feathers, and Vinson, fearing trouble, left the island some weeks ago. Last night, about 12 o'clock, a party of men went to the cottage and called out Elliott. After a considerable struggle they forced him into a wagon in which was a pot of tar and a bag of feathers. Elliott drew a revolver and fired twice, the second shot killing Caleb Smith, a brother of the two women. The report of the pistol frightened the horse, which ran away and threw the whole party from the wagon. Elliott escaped and surrendered himself to the authorities.

THE LATE CONGRESSMAN MELLISH'S WIDOW.—The widow of ex-Congressman Mellish has been appointed a counter in the currency division of the Treasury Department at a salary of $900 a year.

OREGON

The Conference camp meeting at Canby has opened up with the most flattering promise of success.

Mr. Robert Imbrie will shortly boast the largest and finest farm house in Washington county. Robert proposes to live at home and board at the same place.

After fourteen years' active service as resident agent for Wells, Fargo & Co.'s Express Company, B. F. Brown has resigned the position, and J. G. Fuller, formerly Messenger on the O. and C. R. R., has been placed in temporary charge of the office.

A four year old son of Hon. Geo. Downing, of Stayton, had his leg badly broken just above the knee, a few days since, while playing with a dog in the yard. The same limb was fractured a short time ago and it is supposed a sudden fall completed the work.

The farmers should gather up all the plows and broken implements, and take them to the shops, so they may be repaired during the lull in cutting the harvest. When the time comes to move the crop mechanics will be overrun with work and will have but little time to bestow on these things. Give your mechanics time and have your work done better.

The little town of Stayton was thrown into an excited state one day last week by the sudden alarm of fire. The dwelling house of Drury Stayton, situated on the outskirts of town, was discovered in flames and, before assistance could be rendered, was burned to the ground, the furniture alone being saved by the family, Mr. Stayton being absent at the time. The loss is estimated at about $500, without insurance.

Our correspondent informs us that the Germans of Washington county have almost stripped the mountains between Portland and Hillsboro, and large patches of grain, looking first-rate, can be seen now growing on the very summit. The forests are rapidly disappearing. It lacks but a few years before there will be one continuous stretch of farms from the Willamette to the Coast Range. All hail to the yeomanry of Oregon.

The citizens of Stayton, Marion county, are resolved to have a flouring mill at all hazards, and have taken hold of the matter in the right spirit. Articles of incorporation have been filed and a Board of Directors been elected with the following officers: Alex. Clark, President; Dr. S. D. McCauley, Secretary, and B. S. Stayton, Treasurer. Ambrose Sloper and Chas. W. Thomas constitute the remainder of the Board. Work on the building has already been commenced.

Our Hillsboro correspondent says the present rain has frustrated the farmers in Washington county terribly. They had just got their machinery in good working trim when the rain came and stopped everything. They can be seen on street corners and out on the barnyard fences, whistling as disconsolately as any "discomfited Granger" can, when he makes up his mind that the "world and Government are all going to the dogs and the middle men" in spite of creation.

Articles of incorporation were filed at the County Clerk's office, at Salem, Tuesday last, of the Oregon Sugar Beet Manufacturing Company, the object of which is to carry on and conduct the business of manufacturing sugar from beets, and distill spirits from the refuse syrups of said process. The names of the incorporators are Geo. L. Curry, Jno. A. Bradley, Frederick Hiller, Henry Toomey and L. L. Bullock. The manufactory will be located near Aurora, where the business office will probably be stationed. The capital stock has been placed at $100,000, divided into 2,000 shares of $50 each. Mr. Hiller has left for Germany to purchase machinery, and next year the work will be put up.

BRITISH COLUMBIA.

The Victoria Colonist says the Wellington Colliery has 3,000 tons of coal in the bins.

It is reported that S. D. Levi, of Nanaimo, has failed. His liabilities are stated at $27,000.

The Wesleyan Methodist Church of British Columbia received last year $10,595, and expended a like amount.

Within a radius of three miles from the center of Victoria city there are not less than seventy establishments licensed to sell intoxicating liquors.

Farmers in the adjacent districts to Victoria are busy harvesting. The season is strictly in advance of any previous season. The yield will be average.

During the year ending 30th June, 1874, the Government steamer Sir James Douglas steamed 15,000 miles, carried 1,200 passengers and consumed 940 tons of coal.

The machinery of the old Fraser river steamer Alexandra has been sold to a Portland, Oregon, firm by the H. B. Co., and was shipped on board the California for Portland.

The American steamer Etta White is lying at New Westminster to secure the benefit which a fresh water bath is supposed to confer upon the worms which salt water produce in vessels below the water line, in extermination.

Mr. Thos. Woods, Superintendent of the Marine Hospital, at Victoria, has taken charge of the establishment, which will be thrown open to patients in a few days. Five sick seamen are awaiting the opening to take up their quarters therein.

Mr. Ch[illegible] Murphy, of Union Bar, has been appointed Superintendent of No. 5 section of the Yale-New Westminster road. Mr. Geo. Landvoight has been appointed Superintendent of the Great Trunk road between Princetown and the Skaget.

From Nanaimo word comes that the miners in Douglas Pit have struck work, alleging as a reason dissatisfaction with the company's physician, and that little or no work is being done. The company's manager states the agreement is for two years, and that having six months yet to run, the gentleman cannot be dismissed.

The Colonist says: "Superintendent McMicking has returned from the scene of the broken cable. He tried to raise the cable, but it broke in two with its own weight. An attempt to raise it with grapples failed, and we believe that the Superintendent will recommend that a new cable four miles in length be procured. The cost will be about $7,000, and the delay will be about two months."

THE TERRITORIES

Wheat threshing is in full blast in Walla Walla county.

About forty men have unmered at the Yakima mines.

The thunder shower was quite severe in Olympia last Wednesday afternoon.

A correspondent of the Port Townsend Argus says: The new light on Cape Beale, Vancouver Island, B. C., can be seen very plainly on clear nights from Tatoosh Light, distant over thirty miles. It is a small revolving reflector light, and will be invaluable on dark winter nights to vessels approaching the coast from the westward, giving them a true course for Tatoosh Light and the Straits of Fuca.

The British ship Rosalia returned to Port Townsend last Saturday, her crew being in a mutinous condition, they refusing duty on account of the ship being unseaworthy. The Master, Capt. Veal, had a survey, who, after carefully examining the ship, pronounced her sound and seaworthy, and advised the Captain to proceed on his voyage to New Zealand, which he accordingly did with a part of his crew in irons.

BANISHMENT OF CONANT FROM THE STATE OF SONORA.—San Diego, August 1.—The Union's correspondent at Ures, Sonora, June 30th, says: Chas. Conant, who issued a pronunciamento some months ago at Alamos, which was soon crushed, but nevertheless caused bloodshed and expense, was tried and sentenced to death. Many of the better class of citizens protesting against the sentence, the State Legislature took hold of the matter and had the sentence commuted to three years banishment from the State."

TIRED OF PARTY JUGGLERY.—The closing appeal of the address put forth by the Congressional Republican Committee, that Republicans be sent to Congress instead of Democrats, does not entirely please the Boston Advertiser. It says: "That is very well. But there are hundreds of thousands of Republicans scattered all over the land who are tired of the old party jugglery, and, if they cannot have honest men to vote for, will answer all such solicitation in the true Scripture fashion, 'Is thy servant a dog, that he should do this thing?'"

FRIDAY MORNING AUGUST 7, 1874

THE SENTIMENTALISTS

Whatever good or harm religion and general society may receive from the so called investigation now going on in Brooklyn or rather all over the United States with its central point in Brooklyn, there is reason to expect one beneficial effect from it not perhaps an effect sufficiently beneficial to counterbalance the evil that will be produced but sufficient, at least to be set down as one redeeming feature We refer to the probability that the eyes of the world will be opened to the fact that religion may run into the most vapory sickly and even dangerous sentimentalism The remarks of the N Y Times which were transferred to these columns a few days since, on the 'bewildering dialect' in which the three principal characters in the great domestic tragedy habitually express, or try to express their thoughts and feelings, were very just But they did not go far enough. This 'bewildering dialect" is but the natural consequence of a state of intellectual and moral bewilderment toward which Beecherism in religion naturally tends A religion that leaves the reasoning faculties out of consideration, and consists simply in a continued and habitual exaltation of the emotional nature, may be very comfortable, but it can scarcely be predicated of it that it gives the best preparation of character to meet all the demands of life, or that it is the strongest fortifications against just such devil's logic as that by which Theodore Tilton was made a teacher of free-loveism and Mrs Tilton, possibly, made a practical exemplar of that monstrous doctrine No one can read the statements as they appear in the various forms of evidence before the Committee, interviews with newspaper reporters, private letters, &c, without a painful sense of the subjection of the intellect to a sort of sentimentality that is only one remove from lunacy. The subject of their speech, and the circumstances under which they now come before the world, certainly demand, if any case can demand, the exercise of the faculty of judgment They could well dispense with flights into the "mysteries of the eternities" for a little while, and talk rationally about a matter calling for nothing but practical wisdom, and we cannot but believe they would do so had not the habit of floating around without compass or rudder in a sea of heavenly indefiniteness disqualified their minds to entertain practical thoughts Surely religion is a good thing to live with and to die with, but just as surely it is very far from a good substitute for common sense

INTEREST COMING DOWN

While the newspapers discuss the propriety of repealing the usury law, the price of money comes down without awaiting the action of the Legislature One of the solid men of this city informs us that a loan of very considerable magnitude was effected a day or two ago, at nine per cent per annum The same gentleman states there will be plenty of money in the market at that rate before a great while This, perhaps, will not materially affect the rate for short loans but it will be of great benefit in furnishing means for such enterprises in the way of manufacturing as may be undertaken The rate of interest allowed by law is such as few persons engaged in manufactures can afford to pay, while the fact that the rate is fixed by law, with serious forfeitures for receiving higher rates, discourages the bringing of money to the State for investment. There could be no surplus here so long as there was a reasonable prospect of finding more profitable employment elsewhere. That money has become more plentiful at last has come to pass in spite of the usury law, not in consequence of it The panic last fall checked extravagance, stayed speculation and brought business to a safer basis Similar crises have always had that effect. They have prostrated much of the business of the country, but they have also made men more prudent, and as a result they have always been followed by a season of plenty in the money markets One needs but to glance over the history of the financial crises that have been experienced in the United States, to verify the statement that the first important effect after the subsidence of the panic, has been that money was plentiful for safe and careful investment It is therefore believed there will soon be in Oregon funds ample for all the demands of legitimate business at a reasonable rate of interest

MOSES AND THE JUDGE

They must have a very singular state of affairs, or else some very singular officers, in South Carolina Judge Mackey of the Circuit Court, recently made a public accusation against Governor Moses, that he habitually prostituted the pardoning power, to which the Governor replied that he had pardoned but forty-one—only forty-one—criminals convicted in Judge Mackey's circuit, and that of these, twenty eight were pardoned at the written request of Judge Mackey himself And now comes the rejoinder of Judge Mackey, in which he treats the intimation that he had been particeps criminis as coolly as Moses could possibly have treated the original charge He merely says, in substance, that his recommendation is no excuse for the Governor's corruptions, and declares that the guilt of the thirteen whose pardon he did not recommend was greater in the aggregate than that of all the twenty-eight others And then he closes with the startling declaration that "Governor Moses has not yet announced whether the corrupt use of the pardoning power is regarded by him as the greatest or the least of the infamies which he has practiced amid the vast variety of his crimes proved and provable"

It is difficult to imagine what sort of crimes these twenty-eight convicts could have been charged with—which were so clearly proved as to secure their conviction, and of which, nevertheless they were so clearly innocent that the presiding Judge himself felt called upon to interpose his influence to secure Executive clemency for them The records of criminal jurisprudence present once in a great while a case in which the crime is purely technical, or in which evidence discovered subsequently to the trial shows the conviction to have been wrong, and in such cases there would be no impropriety in the Judge's recommending a pardon But instances of this sort of thing are of comparatively rare occurrence They do not go in gangs of twenty eight It would be about as hard to convince us that any Judge can find twenty-eight lawfully convicted persons whom he can with propriety recommend for Executive clemency, among those tried in the Court over which he presides, as it would to make us believe any Governor can find forty one convicts from a single judicial circuit who deserve to be pardoned

At last Mr Frank Moulton is before the Investigating Committee, and we may have his testimony in the great scandal to morrow It is to be hoped this will prove the beginning of the end No matter what may be the facts in the case all will agree that in Moulton's letter to Beecher which is found in this morning's dispatches he puts some shots where they will do the most good on the subject of Beecher's delaying and quibbling about his own statement Moulton appears to think a man is apt to know without the use of any outside means of refreshing his memory whether he is guilty or not guilty of charges like those Tilton prefers Philandering with another man's wife is not a thing one is likely to forget speedily

THE BEECHER-TILTON CASE.

MRS WOODHULL IRREPRESSIBLE

An intimate friend of Mrs Woodhull states that the refusal of the Committee to receive the damaging evidence against Beecher which she holds has relieved her of all responsibility in the matter, and she now feels at liberty to publish all the facts in her possession These facts will be published after the report of the proceedings of the Committee has been made public

TILTON'S VISITOR

Tilton last evening had an unwelcome and uninvited guest He was returning from a drive and on entering his house was surprised to see his parlor lit up and some one performing upon his piano On entering, he found the identical young man who called on him Friday representing himself as a brother of Mr Belmont and a part owner of the Herald, and stating he had some letters written by Mrs Tilton concerning Mr Tilton The latter, on recognizing his visitor told him he was an intruder, seized him by the arm, led him to the street and ordered him to get into a carriage and be off The young man then gave his name as Porter, and begged Tilton to let him go in Tilton threatened to take him to the stationhouse when Porter broke away and fled

PLYMOUTH CHURCH SERVICES

Were held this A M in the lecture room where they will continue to be held for some weeks while the church is being repaired The Rev Dr Robinson of Troy, preached a sermon on the 'Loveliness of Christ' In the evening he held a communion service at one of the Plymouth Church Missions No reference was made to the present difficulties

THE LIBEL CASE

It is not likely that Gaynor the complainant in the case against Tilton will appear with counsel to-morrow. His applications, so far as known have not met with success

DEFENSE OF THE NEW YORK PRESS

The Herald to-day publishes a lengthy editorial on the Beecher Tilton scandal and makes some matter-of-fact, sensible suggestions It refers to the attitude taken by some of the country press against the papers of this city, intimating that the object of the New York papers is to destroy Tilton and save Beecher, no matter at what sacrifice of truth of justice It says the truth is that so far as the city press is concerned, without any desire to shield Beecher or do injustice to his antagonist, there has been a wish to give a clergyman of world wide fame for genius and virtue the benefit of the doubt until circumstances no longer admit of doubt There would be little to tempt any one to a life of effort and self-denial if, in a day by unfounded accusation, by successful slander and persistent calumny, the results of such a life could be over thrown There was no motive for Tilton's war upon Beecher but his own cold, deliberate purpose to destroy a man whom he regarded as his enemy for ever If the offense he now charges against Mr Beecher is true Tilton condoned it and accepted an apology, and, as a man of honor could no longer have in it a motive for strife.

WHAT THE COUNTRY ASKS

Is not that Beecher would deny Tilton's charges but that he would explain his own self-condemning letters These letters stand in the way of a belief in Beecher's innocence The country wants a plain brief statement that will tell the truth so that there shall be no doubt of the truth No man on this earth knows better than Beecher how to write or speak the truth in such a way that it cannot be mistaken By the truth he must stand or fall. The Herald claims that if Tilton wants to establish his case he should enter upon legal proceedings If the matter is not taken to the Courts, it considers Beecher the victim of

A CONSPIRACY TO BLACKMAIL

And advises that Tilton be arrested for defamation of character and argues that Beecher has no other resource than to have him arrested on this charge It is no longer a Church quarrel, but a subject affecting society and morals—one of interest to every citizen If Beecher is innocent let that fact be made manifest if not we cannot know the sad truth too soon In conclusion, it hopes that before another Sunday we shall have an end of the present suspense

CITY.

STRUCK BY LIGHTNING.—During the violent thunder storm on Wednesday evening the lightning played a little freak which did not result in any particular damage, but was one of the traditional might have beens. Mr. J. H. Gove, just before the rain began to descend, was engaged at work in putting up a new woodshed for Mr. J. N. Dolph, whose residence stands near the corner of Seventh and Alder streets. His little son was with him at the time. They had finished putting up a temporary scaffold and turned away when the lightning struck the upper end of a piece of scantling which was resting on the ground at the other against the shed. A small round piece of wood larger than a man's finger was torn out from one end to the other of the scantling, making a smoothly cut groove. After passing along the timber the lightning went for a large wild cherry tree which stood several yards away. A strip of bark about an inch wide was torn off the entire length of the trunk and several small branches cut away. From the cherry tree the pesky lightning returned to the woodshed and, after splitting a plank which was nailed against the house, returned to mother earth and didn't play any more capers. Mr. Gove and his son were standing about fifteen feet away from the scaffold when the electrical fluid was whisking about it. Everything was done in the twinkling of an eye, but the shock stunned Mr. Gove for a moment and caused him to drop several tools which he was holding in his hands at the time. Handling sharp pointed tools during a thunder storm is sometimes not the most healthy recreation in the world, and Mr. Gove can regard his escape as very fortunate.

PASSENGERS.—Last evening at 10 o'clock the steamer John L. Stephens sailed from this port for San Francisco carrying hence the following passengers: Wm. Wilson, J. Alexander, M. Hexter, S. Seller, — Hapgood, A. Beck, Mrs. Capt. McGee, Mrs. W. W. Freeman, Miss A. Beck, T. F. Farrah, wife and two children, K. Macleay, J. Lowenberg, A. A. Kohn, Rev. A. R. Medbury, wife and child, Rev. John McCarty and wife, Judge S. J. Field, Captain Bemis, H. W. Kone, Charles Hirstel, Emil Frank, H. Ackerman, Joseph Myers, J. Everding, wife and child, Mrs. Gen. Adair, Mrs. Farrell, W. Miller, Henry Thompson and brother, J. Southerland, Alex. Campbell, wife and child, J. W. Gamble, J. W. Miller and wife, I. Reamer, J. H. McCroskey, George W. Kidd, George W. Thompson, J. Dudley, Joseph Harris, M. Rosendorff, Edward Sykes, D. B. Clarkson, C. P. May, Miss P. M. Redmand, G. W. F. Vernon, A. Wolf, W. P. Adams, E. Fikles, W. O. Bruen, S. F. Pike, R. Goltner, M. Foreman, H. C. Wharton, M. Zahn, J. B. Reinhart, wife and infant, Mrs. Eliza Francis, Mrs. A. H. Morgan and son, Sheridan Mayfield and brother, F. M. Vankerk, J. J. Brown, H. F. Adkins, M. Prager, H. H. Hart, Rev. Father Goens, H. D. Larino, D. F. Harrington and boy, Miss Dora Shaw, Miss Lillie Shaw, G. T. Seymour, Wallace Shaw, Mrs. H. A. Hoover and child, W. F. & Co's messenger, and 25 in the steerage.

THE OYSTER BLIGHT.—From a late number of the Call we learn that the Shoalwater Bay oysters which have been transplanted into the Bay of San Francisco are afflicted with some kind of a disease which is destroying them. What is singular is the fact that Eastern oysters lying in the same locality, are not affected. There are various conjectures as to the cause, but it is still a matter of doubt. Geological researches show that the oyster once flourished on this coast and grew to an enormous size, but some change has taken place unfavorable to them and they have disappeared from the coast of California. The oysters of the coast north of us are smaller and coppery, while those of the Gulf of California are of good size, but pronounced deficient in flavor by connoisseurs. The probability is that the waters of our coast are impregnated with some mineral or other substance injurious to the oyster. In the summer of 1868 a disease appeared among them similar to the one now prevailing and proved fatal to the oysters in the Bay of San Francisco.

CATHOLIC SOCIAL UNION.—A meeting of this organization was held on Tuesday evening which was numerously attended. The following committees were appointed for the ensuing season: On Finance—Miss Katie Showers, Mr. Edward Brown and Mr. D. J. Malarkey. On Literature—Miss K. Fay, J. W. Whaley and J. M. Birmingham. On Music—Miss Johanna Harrington, Charles Petram and S. J. McCormick. The next regular meeting will be held on Tuesday evening, September 1st, for which occasion the following programme has been selected: Grand Overture by members of the Union; Music, Miss E. O'Connor; Essay, J. M. Gearin; Song, Miss Annie Fitzpatrick; Declamation, W. J. Kelly; Vocal Music, Miss Mary Backenstos; Reading, Miss Tillie Raleigh; Song, James Armstrong; Recitation, Miss Mary Hickey; Grand Finale, members of the Union.

LIMITS CHANGED.—Once more the equanimity of the City Fathers is disturbed in relation to the running at large of cows, horses, hogs and fowls within certain limits of the city. For several weeks the subject has been violently agitated and at length a definite course of action determined upon. A special meeting of the Council has been called for next Monday evening, on which occasion the cow ordinance will be summarily disposed of. The new ordinance contemplates a material alteration of the present limits within which bovines are prohibited from straying at large. Owners of live stock had better take time by the traditional forelock and gather them in before the passage and going into effect of the new ordinance.

INSTALLED.—The following list of officers elected for the ensuing term of Nonpareil Lodge No. 86, I. O. G. T., were duly installed on Wednesday evening by Bro. W. B. Carter, G. L. D. of Excelsior Lodge, Corvallis: Henry Williams, W. C. T.; Mrs. M. B. Virgil, V. T.; Walter A. Robinson, W. S.; Miss Lizzie Merrill, W. A. S.; Miss Jennie Richey, W. T.; Richard Bird, W. F. S.; Mrs. S. T. W. Stearns, W. C.; M. Minahan, W. M.; Miss Lizzie Freez, A. M.; I. Bennett, I. G.; J. Ormsby, O. G.; Miss M. Richey, R. H. S.; Mrs. C. E. Bird, L. H. S.

COURT MARTIAL.—Yesterday the officers comprising the court martial in the case of Major V. S. Eggleston, convened at the head quarters. The charges alleged are the defalcation of Government moneys to a considerable sum. As the court martial is strictly private we are unable to place before our readers any information regarding the case at present.

RELIGIOUS NOTICE.—Rev. A. F. Fridrichsen, D. D., will conduct religious service in the English language on Sabbath morning next in the Evangelical Lutheran Church of East Portland at 10 o'clock. The Norwegian service will be held in the evening at 7½ o'clock in the Y. M. C. A. room over Ladd & Tilton's bank.

ST. VINCENT'S HOSPITAL.—A large number of workmen have been busy during the past week preparing the foundation and leveling off the ground adjacent to where St. Vincent's Hospital is to be erected. The building will comprise a brick basement and two stories, erected with a view to health, comfort and cleanliness.

CHANGE IN THE EXPRESS OFFICE AT SALEM.—We have no further particulars concerning the robbery of Wells, Fargo & Co. at Salem. H. C. Pike, Route Agent, on the day before yesterday placed Mr. Fuller in charge of the office made vacant by the discharge of Mr. Brown.

ELEGANTLY FURNISHED.

Availing of an invitation yesterday evening, we paid a visit to the engine house of Willamette Co. No. 1, the upper portion of which has just been furnished in the most elegant and elaborate manner by the members of that Company. On entering the room we confess our surprise at the elegance of the surroundings and the good taste everywhere displayed. Under foot the floor was covered with a rich Brussels carpeting of costly design and handsome workmanship, while splendid furniture adorned the apartment and elegant paintings ornamented the wall. Five large sofas and fifteen chairs are ranged around the outer edge of the apartment, all of rich and expensive workmanship. The wood is of black walnut, elaborately carved, and the seats are covered with fine patent leather. Each sofa has carved in the ends the figure "1," and in the center of the back a silver monogram of the Company. The President's chair is a perfect specimen of woodwork and upholstery. It is made of black walnut, covered in a tasty manner with rich plush. Two fireman's trumpets crossed and surmounted with a hat on the front of which the figure "1" is carved out of wood in a neat workmanlike style on the top of the back, just above the head of the person occupying the chair. The President's table, which stands on the raised platform level with the chair, consists of a wooden hydrant made from black walnut and maple. This hydrant is about three and a half feet high and beautifully carved. On the top a round piece of marble is fitted, on which rests the gavel when not used in calling meetings to order. The joints of the hydrants are securely fastened together with silver nuts and bolts, and the plug is attached to the main hydrant by a chain made of the same metal. Nottingham lace curtains are hung up in front of the windows, while around and above the President's chair are suspended rich damask drapery. The desk for the Secretary is a handsome piece of furniture, covered with green cloth and arranged with a number of drawers for the safe deposit of papers and books belonging to the Company. Six costly chromos adorn the walls of the room, presented to the Company by W. S. Ladd, Esq., C. H. Lewis, Esq., and Hon. Henry Failing. At the southern end of the room, on each side of the door, as one enters or departs, hang two beautiful framed wreaths. One of these wreaths was presented by Mrs. Iverson, wife of the engineer of the company. It was made by that lady of parti-colored feathers and is a very neat specimen of feminine taste, skill and patience. The other wreath is made of artificial flowers, and is a present from ladies of Albany. In the center of the room is a handsome table on which is placed two glass pitchers of beautiful design and a number of glasses, all of which were presented by Mrs. Everson. From the ceiling depends a magnificent gas chandelier with a number of jets which after night will shed down a flood of radiant light. Some time during next month we learn the company propose to hold a formal reception, on which occasion the rooms will be open to invited guests. No engine house in the State can boast of more costly and elaborate furnishings than that of Willamette Company No. 1, and it is not to be wondered at that the members of that sterling old fire company should feel proud of their quarters and of the elegance and comforts of its surroundings. Nearly $2,000 was expended in furnishing the room.

In the matter of the estate of John J. Sullivan, deceased, order for citation made returnable on the 1st day of the September term.

Adjourned until to-morrow at 10 o'clock A. M.

RELIGIOUS INTELLIGENCE.

RELIGIOUS LOCAL, PERSONAL AND GENERAL.

[From the Sentinel.]

Rev. A. J. Glorieux will take the place of Father Goens as pastor at Oregon City, on next Sunday. Services at the usual hours.

Rev. L. Verhaag will hold divine service at St. John's Church, Milwaukie, on the 16th inst., being the third Sunday in the month.

A grand fair will be held at Spiritual Hall, Astoria, commencing on the 11th inst. and continuing during the entire week, for the benefit of Father Gibney's new church.

The numerous friends of Father Dielman will be happy to learn that he is now on his return trip to Oregon. He is accompanied by Rev. Joseph Leroy, who has been ordained for the Diocese of Vancouver's Island. Both Rev. gentlemen are expected to arrive during the present month.

We learn from the Colonist that the annual examination of the pupils attending St. Ann's convent school, Victoria, passed off recently with great credit to both teachers and pupils. The examinations were conducted by the Rt. Rev. Bishop Seghers, assisted by Fathers Kerley, Brabant and other clergymen attached to the Cathedral.

[From the P. C. Advocate.]

The Fourth Quarterly Conference for Hall street Charge will be held at the Church on Friday evening, the 7th inst., commencing at 7:30.

Persons attending the Conference camp meeting to be held at Canby Conference camp ground, on the line of the O. & C. R. R., from the 4th to the 10th of August, may obtain half fare tickets to and from the campground upon application therefor at any of the offices along the line of the railroad.

Mrs. F. P. Church, who was for some time connected with the Portland Academy as teacher of music, has nearly recovered from the accident which so long deprived her of the use of her arm. She is now at Astoria, but we are glad to announce that she will return to Portland about the 1st of September and resume her classes in music.

JAY COOKE'S AFFAIRS—THE NORTHERN PACIFIC.—New York, July 31.—A Philadelphia dispatch says the examination of members of the bankrupt firm of Jay Cooke & Co. has not resulted in important disclosures. Jay Cooke said that the profits of the firm were half a million of dollars in 1871 and the same in 1872, and that in 1873 up to the time of suspension the accumulation of profits was $1,375,000. The firm took Northern Pacific bonds at 83 and interest, making about $60. He understood the bonds were now worth 30 in the market. If they should be guaranteed by Congress the bonds would be above par. Henry D. Cooke stated in his examination that the firm owed the First National Bank of Washington $600,000, for which the bank had no security except $100,000 in Northern Pacific bonds. Individual members of the firm were the principal owners. He owed the bank personally $400,000 when it suspended. The account of the Potomac Ferry Company, controlled by the firm, was overdrawn $8,000. Among individual accounts with the First National Bank which were overdrawn was that of Ulysses S. Grant, to the amount of $2,006.87. The bank was indebted to the Treasury Department $170,000 on account of continuous transactions running back to 1862.

A STRANGE INCIDENT.—The Dallas (Tex.) Commercial records this strange incident: A most singular and melancholy affair occurred a few days ago which looks as if the Almighty did take cognizance of our worldly affairs and mete out just punishment for our misdeeds in taking His name in vain. A man by the name of Sills was having an altercation with his wife, Jennie Sills, or Big Jennie, as she is called. In the height of the quarrel waxed warm ... Maker's name in vain, and hoped God would paralyze him. Before finishing his sentence he was struck dumb and has not uttered a word since. Big Jennie is a ... AMUSEMENTS.

The second of the series of concerts being given by Madam Anna Bishop and her competent troupe last night, was largely attended by a class of very intelligent and appreciative citizens. The programme selected was a most excellent one, and being carried out with the talent of the troupe, the audience was highly delighted throughout the entire entertainment. Mr. Lask, the pianist, has been heard by many of our readers, and to say that he accomplishes the most difficult passages in music with ease, grace and beauty would only be saying what all who have heard him know. His opening piece, "Potpourri La Fille de Mme Angot," was finely rendered and was followed by "My Queen," by Mr. Wilkie, whose fine tenor voice had full scope for its powers in the song, which is a difficult one. One of the gems of the evening came next in cavatina "Di piacer," from Rossini, in which Mrs. Marriner displayed a wonderful power, compass and control of voice, combined with that peculiar sweetness of tone which has rendered only a few singers of this and our country famous. She was rapturously encored and responded with a beautiful ballad delightfully rendered. Mr. Campbell sang "The Bell Ringer" with much feeling and fervor, and displayed one of the finest baritone voices we have heard for a long time. He responded to an encore with "The Fine Old Irish Gentleman," which was loudly applauded. The Cavatina "Robert toi que j'aime," by Madame Bishop, was superbly given, and being vociferously applauded she reappeared and sang a ballad in her sweetest strains and was greeted with renewed applause. "Love and War," a duet by Messrs. Wilkie and Campbell, was excellent. The second part of the programme was equal in point of merit with the first, each of the singers being encored and each favoring the audience with their best efforts. It is not probable that after the close of this series of concerts another one of as much real merit will be given in our city for a long time, and we would call special attention to the fact that Saturday night's concert will be the last of the series. All who have not attended hitherto ought to go, and those who have will be anxious to go again.

HIS SIXTEENTH VOYAGE.—A New York paper says: Mr. A. T. Stewart sailed in the Scotia on Thursday on his sixteenth trip across the Atlantic. He was accompanied by ex-Judge Hilton. He took the same stateroom and seat at the table that he had on his last trip in the same steamer just a year ago. Several magnificent floral tributes were sent on board and put on the table in his room just before the vessel's departure. The dry goods millionaire traveled in an ordinary suit, and carried less luggage than a fifteen-year-old boarding school miss. Mr. Stewart will remain abroad until October. He will visit his dry goods palaces in England and on the continent, and will also make a tour of the watering places in France and Germany. His trip is somewhat remarkable for a person of his age. He is in his seventy-first year and has been for some time ill.

A BIG FISH FOR WISCONSIN, PERHAPS.—Madison, Wis., July 27.—The people of this city have been thrown into excitement by the capture, after a three hours struggle, of a monster fish very much like a sturgeon, six feet six inches long, 18 inches in circumference, and weighing 105 pounds, caught in Lake Monona yesterday by Mr. Wm. Hausden and son, assisted by others, and is the first of the kind ever caught here. It is a mystery how it came here, as there are dams on the streams leading to the waters they inhabit.

DR. KENEALY LOSING POSITION.—London, August 2.—The Observer reports that the Benchers of Gray's Inn held another conference yesterday to consider the case of Dr. Kenealy upon issues arising out of the late Tichborne trial and for articles published in the Englishman. It was decided to deprive Dr. Kenealy of his membership, and to further consider the question of expelling him from the Bar if publication in the Englishman continue.

A TWO DOLLAR CONSCIENCE.—Washington, July 28.—A persistent as well as an illiterate Chicagoan has addressed a letter enclosing two dollars to Treasurer Spinner, with the following instructions:

"Mr. Spinner—Pleas kredit this to the consience fund."

ANOTHER HERESY TRIAL.—Indianapolis, July 30.—The semi-annual conference of Methodists of the Indianapolis district met to-day at Mooresville, before which Rev. T. A. Goodwin is to be arraigned for heresy for writing the book "Mode of Man's Immortality."

Curing versus Cobbling.

There are many medicines that give transient relief in sickness without touching the source and seat of the complaint. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is not one of these. The great tonic and restorative does not cobble the diseased and enfeebled system. It is not a mere palliative that only temporarily controls a few unpleasant symptoms. Its invigorating, regulating, restorative principle penetrates to the very source of the difficulty in the fluids and solids of the body, and hence its cures are radical and thorough. In dyspepsia it strengthens the stomach; in liver complaint it regulates the flow of bile; in constipation it promotes a punctual habit of body; in nervous ailments it ... the patients and ... in rheumatism it counteracts pain, and in cases of ... debility it rehabilitates the emaciated frame.

Sudden Changes in the Weather are Productive of Throat Diseases, Coughs and Colds. There is no more effectual relief to be found than in the use of Jayne's Expectorant.

WEAK LUNGS AND CHESTS, broken and the general strength gradually wasted by a persistent deep seated Cough, which Dr. Jayne's Expectorant may be relied on to cure. You will have certain benefit from it also, if troubled with either Asthma or Bronchitis.

FRIDAY MORNING, AUGUST 7, 1874.

AURELIA'S UNFORTUNATE YOUNG MAN

BY MARK TWAIN

The facts in the following case came to me by letter from a young lady who lives in the beautiful city of San José. She is perfectly unknown to me and simply signs herself Aurelia Maria, which may possibly be a fictitious name. But no matter the poor girl is almost heart broken by the misfortunes she has undergone, and so confused by the conflicting counsels of misguided friends and insidious enemies that she does not know what course to pursue to extricate herself from the web of difficulties in which she seems almost hopelessly involved. In this dilemma she turns to me for instruction with a moving eloquence that would touch the heart of a statue. Hear her sad story.

She says that, when she was sixteen years old she met and loved with all the devotion of a passionate nature, a young man from New Jersey named Williamson Breckinridge Caruthers, who was some six years her senior. They were engaged with the free consent of their friends and relatives and for a time it seemed as if their career was destined to be characterized by an immunity from sorrow beyond the usual lot of humanity. But at last the tide of fortune turned, young Caruthers became infected with small pox of the most virulent type and when he recovered from his illness his face was pitted like a waffle mold and his comeliness gone forever. Aurelia thought to break off the engagement at first, but pity for her unfortunate lover caused her to postpone the marriage for a season and give him another trial.

The very day before the wedding was to take place Breckinridge while absorbed in watching the flight of a balloon walked into a well and fractured one of his legs and it had to be taken off above the knee. Again Aurelia was moved to break the engagement but again love triumphed, and she set the day forward and gave him another chance to reform.

And again misfortune overtook the poor youth. He lost one arm by the premature discharge of a Fourth of July cannon and within three months, he got the other pulled out by a carding machine. Aurelia's heart was almost crushed by these latter calamities. She could not but be grieved to see her lover passing from her by piecemeal, feeling, as she did that he could not last forever under this disastrous process of reduction yet knowing of no way to stop its dreadful career and in her tearful despair, she almost regretted like brokers who hold on and lose that she had not taken him at first, before he had such an alarming depreciation. Still her brave soul bore her up, and she resolved to bear with her friend's unnatural disposition yet a little longer.

Again the wedding approached, and again disappointments overshadowed it. Caruthers fell ill with the erysipelas, and lost the use of one of his eyes entirely. The friends and relatives of the bride considering that she had already put up with more than could reasonably be expected of her, now came forward and insisted that the match should be broken off but after wavering a little Aurelia with a generous spirit that did her credit said she had reflected calmly upon the matter and could not discover that Breckinridge was to blame.

So she extended the time once more, and he broke his other leg.

It was a sad day for the poor girl when she saw the surgeons reverently bearing away the sack whose uses she had learned by previous experience and her heart told her the bitter truth that some more of her lover was gone. She felt that the field of her affections was growing more and more circumscribed every day but once more she frowned down her relatives and renewed her betrothal.

Shortly before the time set for the nuptials another disaster occurred. There was but one man scalped by the Owens River Indians last year. That man was Williamson Breckinridge Caruthers of New Jersey. He was hurrying home with happiness in his heart, when he lost his hair forever and in that hour of bitterness he almost cursed the mistaken mercy that had spared his head.

At last Aurelia is in serious perplexity as to what she ought to do. She still loves her Breckinridge she writes, with truly womanly feeling—she still loves what is left of him—but her [illegible] are bitterly [illegible] to the match because he has no property and is disabled from working, and she has not sufficient means to support both comfortably. "Now, what should she do?" she asks with painful and anxious solicitude.

It is a delicate question; it is one which involves the life-long happiness of a woman and that of nearly two-thirds of a man and I feel that it would be assuming too great a responsibility to do more than make a mere suggestion in the case. How would it do to build to him? If Aurelia can afford the expense let her furnish her mutilated lover with wooden legs and a glass eye and a wig, and give him another show, give him ninety days without grace, and if he does not break his neck in the mean time, marry him and take the chances. It does not seem to me that there is much risk anyway Aurelia because if he sticks to his singular propensity for damaging himself every time he sees a good opportunity his next experiment is bound to finish him and then you are safe, married or single. If married the wooden legs and such other valuables as he may possess revert to the widow, and you see you sustain no actual loss save the cherished fragment of a noble but most unfortunate husband, who honestly strove to do right, but whose extraordinary instincts were against him. Try it Maria, I have thought the matter over carefully and well, and it is the only chance I see for you. It would have been a happy conceit on the part of Caruthers if he had started with his neck and broken that first but since he has seen fit to choose a different policy and string himself out as long as possible I do not think we ought to upbraid him for it if he has enjoyed it. We must do the best we can under the circumstances, and try not to feel exasperated at him.

DISEASE IN DOUGH

A STARTLING PROCLAMATION TO ALL EATERS.

A medical correspondent of the Boston Globe says: Many diseases arise more frequently in summer than in winter, which the slightest means serves to communicate. Physicians understand how slight an impurity will derange the system. Recognizing this fact, reflection leads me to the belief that the present method for bread making is instrumental in the spread of many communicable diseases and in producing many deleterious effects which do not assume the form of positive disease.

That impurities of the blood are worked off through the skin is a fact so well recognized that specific diseases are treated by this means, and it is even proposed to eliminate from the system the virus of hydrophobia by a process of sweating. The pores of the hand are more open than those of many other parts of the body. The constant perspiration of the hand in warm weather even when unexercised will remind every one of this fact. When the hand is exercised it perspires freely. Now the present process of kneading bread is decidedly objectionable at any time, but in warm weather when the perspiration is in constant flow it is the undoubted means of introducing into the most universal article of diet the impurities and too frequently the seeds of positive disease from the body of the person making the bread. How many persons eat bread without so much as knowing who made it or whether the maker is infected with disease or not? It is not a pleasant consideration but an important one. In the hard exercise of kneading bread and pastry perspiration and all those impurities of which it is designed to free the system are constantly exuding from the skin and are mixed with the bread. It is no security that the hand is externally clean. The cleaner the skin the freer the perspiration. What ill effects result and what diseases are communicated in this way can be learned only by experiment and close observation. It is sufficient in the present instance merely to call attention to a matter in which every one is interested. Let us hope it will be well considered, and that some improvement may be devised upon the long established, but objectionable, method of preparing the commonest article of food. The subject could be greatly enlarged upon.

The excavations for the new law court at London render Temple Bar unsafe and all transit between the Strand and Fleet street is interrupted occasioning much inconvenience.

At Chicago July 31st the new steam fire tugs were out on the river for the first time. The experiments did not prove a perfect success.

The time has come for speculations upon the prospects of the business of the country for the coming year and our exchanges from all sections seem to take a hopeful view of matters and to be confident of a more active and remunerative era of trade than the United States have enjoyed for a long time. Summing up the financial and commercial situation the N. Y. Shipping List says:

Ample arrangements will be made for conducting what now promises to be one of the most prosperous business campaigns we have had in several years. The country probably never stood in a more enviable position as regards its capacity for furnishing the consumers of the world with the necessaries of life and the chances are that the favorable condition of our foreign exchanges, through the unparalleled exports of the last two years of some of our great staples will be maintained. It is possible that the foreign harvests will be so ample as to materially lessen the European dependence upon the United States for food staples but even in that case we shall have cheap bread and meat for our forty millions of home consumers and cheap bread and meat are almost inseparable from a high degree of prosperity. Our advices from the principal business centers indicate an equally hopeful condition of affairs, and if the element of confidence has so much to do with success as is usually admitted, it may in return in the present instance must be reckoned as among the happiest of omens concerning the future.

English Markets, etc

Again through the courtesy of our fellow townsman W. S. Phelps Esq. we are in receipt of a letter and circular from the house of J. & C. Sturge of Birmingham, Eng. and as these documents come from a firm not directly interested in the grain trade of the Pacific Coast we deem them quite reliable and believe they give the unbiased judgment of individuals who have had much experience in the grain markets of England. In the letter which bears date July 16th they say:

We are glad to hear that you are likely to have a fine harvest, which is also the case in Europe. In fact unless things change California wheat may be down to 10s in Liverpool when this reaches you. We shall therefore look to see quotations of 3 s per 500 pounds [illegible] and freight from your side, before we are tempted to operate and are not at all certain that such quotations will [illegible] this autumn. We do not generally go in for cargoes of more than 3 000 quarters each.

The letter is addressed to Mr Phelps. The circular is of the same date and gives the quotations for grains in the markets of Birmingham and Gloucester at that time and their imports for the week together with comments on the crops weather etc. The tendency of prices was downward produced by splendid weather and fine crop prospects.

House Produce Market

WHEAT—The receipt of the first of the new crop is noted and proves to be of prime quality clean plump and bright but as yet only a few small lots have come to hand, there being two or three reasons why trade in the cereal is so dull but the chief is as before noticed that the exporters and farmers seem unable to look at the future in the same light. The price offered here for wheat sacked and delivered for export is $1 40 per cental which is all that is justified by the prospects abroad say these shippers while the farmers say that the supply of tonnage will be abundant and when the exporters find a fleet of vessels on their hands which they must load or pay damages, they will see that the best thing they can do is to come to the producers terms. These are about the ideas that are held and though the money supply is good the grain market is almost bare of transactions. Should this disagreement result in the ordering of vessels now on the way here, being ordered to seek cargoes elsewhere it will be a serious thing for our State's prosperity.

FLOUR—A good article of extra flour is in fair supply jobbing at $[illegible] [illegible] bbl but a few brands of standard qualities are held at [illegible] Common country [illegible] is in the market in fair quantities for the season at $4 75@5 and to superfine quotable at $4@4 50. At these figures the stocks are being worked off gradually and by the time the new wheat crop is ready to be ground supplies here will be comparatively light. The local trade is not brisk at present.

OATS—In this cereal there seems to be but little interest taken at present, buyers not being numerous who are at all anxious to handle any considerable lots at current rates which are not above 40 cents ℔ bushel for choice in sacks. The receipts during the past week have been very light but with the supply of this and other sorts of feed on hand, the trade dull as it is is adequately supplied.

BARLEY—But very few transactions are noted and these mostly to supply the local demand for brewing. Best lots are worth $1 45@1 60 ℔ cwt, including sacks. Inferior $1 37½@1 40 for feed.

FEED—The stocks on hand here are quite small, compared with former periods in the season, but are still adequate to the current demand which is almost entirely local and as always light at this time in the summer. Sales are slow at the current rates, which are $12 ℔ ton for bran, shorts, $1[illegible] chopped middlings etc $[illegible]

HAY—There is a great abundance of the new crop of timothy offering at $10@11 ℔ ton baled or $8 50@9 for loose from wagons. The demand except for local consumption, is very dull.

POTATOES—There is no lack either in quantity or variety of the new crop now coming to hand. Prices range from [illegible] ℔ bushel.

ONIONS—Receipts during the week are only moderate, and prices remain at [illegible] ℔ 100 ℔s with possible chances of [illegible] cents more on extra lots.

DRIED FRUIT—The demand for apples is somewhat brisker and prices have slightly advanced. We quote in sacks [illegible] ℔ in kegs [illegible] Plums without pits 12@14c with pits 6c and dull.

BACON—The market is well supplied with hams and shoulders, which do not find very rapid sales at 15@16c ℔ ℔ for hams common and 8@9c for shoulders. Side meats are in better request at 10@11c. The receipts of the past few days have hardly been up to average.

LARD—A fair article is in good demand at 14c ℔ either in kegs or tins.

BUTTER—The [illegible] supplied, and prices [illegible] range from [illegible]. The best [illegible] to market is used in the local [illegible] and when not delivered on contract [illegible].

CHEESE—The trade is quiet and the demand well supplied at our former quotations.

EGGS—Many very bad lots are reaching the market, one-third of some boxes being unfit to use. The receipts of good lots have been light for several days and prices for such are firm at 30@35c ℔ dozen.

FRESH MEATS—We quote choice young steers on foot at 5@6c ℔ ℔ [illegible] lots, 4@5c. Most of the arrivals now are in excellent condition. Mutton sheep per head quotable at $2 25@2 75. Dressed hogs nominal at 6@7c. Demand not active.

HIDES—Choice dry quotable at 15@16c ℔ ℔; green, 6@6½c; culls 10@11½c. The shipments and receipts are large.

WOOL—The spring clip has now been marketed and excitement in this staple has subsided. The San Francisco steamer going out this evening will take a large shipment, and the next will take the most of the surplus in this market. Quotations are unchanged.
